Tie break clarification when entering results

A tie break is counted as 1 game. A match tiebreak is considered to be a set, but if the contest is equal on sets then the match tiebreak is just counted as 1 game.

In a normal tiebreak set it is not necessary to enter the tie break score – just put the set score as 7-6.

In a match tie break it is best to put the actual score such as 10-6 as that makes it clear it was a super tiebreak. It still only counts as 1 set or 1 game in a countback.

Defaults and how to add them.

If the match did not start it is 6-0 6-0. If the match had started then the loser gets whatever games they had won before retiring.
